FOR NATIONAL SECURITY—

The Naval War College VICE ADM, R. L. CONOLLY, USN President, Naval War College

THE importance of the Naval War College to the Navy is more apparent today than it was in 1884 when the Secretary of the Navy, in a letter to Congress, stated that the introduction of "armored these swift causes.

ships, swift cruisships, swift cruis-ers, rams, sea-going torpedo-boats, and high-powered guns" had so complicated the art of naval warfare that some provision was necessary to acquaint senior officers with the best thought upon these confusing subjects. As a result, Congress reluctantly permitted the Secretary to establish the Naval War College. Admiral Luce, whose clear thinking and tireless efforts, prompted the Secretary's actions, was prompted the Secretary's actions, was named the first President of the College. From a most inauspicious and difficult beginning, the Naval War College, guided by the well conceived ideas of Admiral Luce and given stature by the brilliance of Mahan, has achieved an undisputed position of authority in the field of educational matters relatives to the art and cational matters relating to the art and science of naval warfare.

Vice Adm. R. L. Conolly

If the development of new weapons in 1884 created a pressing need for an institution such as the Naval War College, the vital role of the College in view of modern warfare, which has become com-plex and difficult to a high degree, may be readily appreciated. If high-ranking officers are to be able to develop a coherent and reasoned strategy, taking into account the new weapons, the gigantic logistical demands, the amphibious de-velopments, the new ships, the changing relationship between the armed services and, finally, the continuing impact of military requirements upon the national economy, the need for a period of careful and detached study is all important.

Basically, the Naval War College continues today to operate in conformity with the principles evolved by Admiral

Firstly, there is the tradition of academic freedom. Junior officers can, and do, advance ideas freely and openly, and these ideas are considered on the basis of their inherent worth rather than the

Secondly, in order to obtain as many varied points of view as possible, officers from all the armed services and the State Department are included in the student body. The result is a thorough,

W.O. Promotion Ban Is Rescinded Finally

The long-assailed restriction on advancement of Armed Forces warrant officers to the pay grades W-4 and W-3, comparable to major and captain, has been lifted by the Department of Defense.

The ban on promotion of more than 3 per cent of warrant officer strength to W-4 and 7 per cent to W-3 was terminated with the following directive of Acting Secretary of Defense Robert A.

"Reference is made to Office, Secretary of Defense, 15 May 1950 directive estab-lishing an interim restriction on the number of warrant officers authorized to serve in pay grades W-4, W-3 and W-2.

"The purpose for which these limitations were originally imposed no longer exists. I feel that continuing these re-strictions creates a condition of adverse morale for our warrant officers. Accordingly, I am rescinding the 15 May 1950 directive covering this subject."

The Army immediately disclosed plans for convening selections to name warrant officers for promotion to higher grades. The Air Force stated that because its fiscal year 1952 budget had been formulated on the basis of the 3 and 7 per cent limitations, no new W-4 and W-3 warrant officer advancement program is foreseen immediately.

The Department of Defense, which previously had told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee how a House-approved amendment restricting retirements would hurt the Armed Forces now has provided similar documentation for the other controversial House amendment pretaining to the forced release of ment pertaining to the forced release of

This, the Department strongly opposes, as was spelled out in last week's issue of The Journal.

The amendment relating to Reservists would, if enacted by the Senate and approved by the President, force the Department of Defense to release by 30 November of this year any member of the partment of Defense to release by 30 November of this year any member of the Inactive or Volunteer Reserve who served on active duty for a year or more during World War II and who has served on active duty for a year or more subsequent to 26 June 1950. duty, he could be paid, but otherwise the Department, according to the House amendment would be barred from paying these personnel. This, the Department maintains, would have a serious effect on defense buildup.

In expressing opposition to the Reserve amendment, the Department noted that there were 280,000 persons on active duty at the end of June who fall within the category affected by the House provision, and said that enactment of the requirement would result in either:

"1. A heavy call-up of additional Inactive and Organized Reservists and National Guard as replacements, or

"2. A drastic reduction of effectiveness of combat forces when trained Reserve

"2. A drastic reduction of effectiveness of combat forces when trained Reserve or Guard replacements are not available, as in the case of the Marine Corps."

The 12-month provision, the Department's statement asserted, "would mean a complete disruption of the Services' present personnel plans for orderly replacements and release of Reservists."

It was noted that the provision would

Review of Present Survivor Benefit Laws Shows Gross Inequities and Complexity

The United States Government ap-The United States Government apparently has been willing to do everything possible—short of enacting equitable legislation—to insure adequate benefits for survivors of military personnel who have died since the outbreak of war in Korea.

On the one hand, the Government chooses to recognize Korea as a wartime situation. This administrative determinasituation. This administrative determina-tion authorizes the Veterans Administra-tion to pay benefits to eligible survivors which are higher than those granted by the V. A. in peacetime. But at the same time, the Government has decided that insofar as survivors benefits under the Federal Employment Compensation Act are concerned, the nation is at peace. This ruling is vital because of the fact that benefits under FECA, which are considerably higher in many cases than those paid by the VA, cannot be paid for deaths during war-Thus, officially, and as directly regards survivors benefits, the United States is at war in Korea and likewise simultaneously it is not at war.

To be even more complicated the Army and Air Force Reserve are at peace in Korea for purposes of FECA and the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard

Reserve are considered at war.

This technical matter, however, is only one relatively minor aspect of the existing confusion in the Government's sur-ing confusion in the Government's survivors' benefits programs.

The involved subject, which has such an important effect on the morale of Service people anxious about the welfare of their loved ones, is of particular contemporary interest because of Congressional hearings on the Department of Defense Survivors' Benefits Bill. These benefits would be supported entirely by deductions from the pay of members of the Armed Forces.

THE WAR IN KOREA

As the Chinese Communists continued their interminable propaganda barrage at the same time that thousands of fresh Red troops were reported bolstering enemy forces, President Truman at his press conference on 30 Aug. told the Nation that U.N. forces in Korea will be stronger than before, if they must renew full-scale fighting.

The President emphasized that General latthew B. Ridgway, U.N. Commander, has his 100 per cent support for action taken since the cease-fire negotiations

Meantime, the Department of Defense meantime, the Department of Delense reported this week that through midnight, 24 Aug., U. S. casualties in Korea had reached 81,422, of which 66,661 were Army, 13,099 Marine Corps, 943 Navy and 719 Air Force. Of the 13,617 total deaths, 11,320 were Army, 1,916 Marine Corps, 220 Air Force and 161 Navy.

That the enemy was trying actively to bolster his forces during the period of the interrupted Kaesong negotiations was evident when B-26 Invader bombers of the Fifth Air Force, during the single night of 24-25 Aug., accounted for a majority of 800 vehicles reported destroyed jority of 800 vehicles reported destroyed or damaged. For the successful attacks of the 3d and 452d Bomb Wings, Maj. Gen. Frank E. Everest, USAF, Commanding General of the Fifth Air Force, was congratulated by Lt. Gen. O. P. Weyland, USAF, Commanding General, Far East

On 30 Aug., reports from Eighth Army Headquarters told of observations made of a fresh Communist division northeast of Yanggu, 27 miles from the eastern end

In the area adjacent to where the divi-sion was reported, a series of bitter clashes has been taking place. Northwest clashes has been taking place. Northwest of Yanggu, there were reports of a force of about 2,000 new enemy troops. In general, however, fighting continued to be characterized by clashes of relatively small units, although sharp encounters were reported late in the week. Typical was Korean Release Number 990, 29 Aug., which began: "Yesterday in the eastern and east-central sectors of the Korean battlefront, U.N. ground forces repulsed several enemy counter-

During the week, weather was generally poor, but U.N. bombers were able to make a number of successful attacks by means of radar. On one day, 28 Aug., FEAD warplanes, flying under low clouds through scattered rain showers, mounted 475 sorties. Re-lying on radar, night-flying B-26 light bombers were able to make 17 separate attacks during one night on the airfield

The bad weather in the central east Korean coast area on 29 Aug. permitted Navy rocket ships to maneuver to favorpositions from which they blasted enemy shore guns, which had been fired against Task Force 95 warships.

The destroyer USS Hopewel hit rail-

Parks scored three direct hits on an ammunition supply point in the same area. The heavy cruiser USS Los Angeles, south of Wonsan, supported ROK troops, while the destroyer USS Wedderburn ranged the same area on 29 Aug. performing more than a dozen call free missions against enemy troops and fire missions against enemy troops and transport targets.

Task Force 77

Meantime, Task Force 77 planes from the carriers USS Bon Homme Richard and USS Essex attacked railroad bridges west of Wonsan. The carrier planes have been concentrating on cracking up enemy troop transport and supply lines.

One Marine Corps pilot, Maj. John L. Dexter, jr., attached to the carrier USS Sicily, won special plaudits for a mission in which he was able to drop a small container with target photographs on the fantail of a U.N. cruiser. It was a perfect

The carrier USS Essex is the flagship of Rear Adm. John Perry, USN, Task Force Commander. Last week, Lt. (jg) Richard M. Bellinger, USN, won the distinction of being the first pilot to leave a carrier's flight deck on a combat mission in the Banshee jet fighter when he was catapulted from jet ighter when he was catapulited from the Esesx. Of his new plane, the lieu-tenant said: "She performed like a charm . . . I think she is the best jet fighter the Navy has ever had, and the finest I have ever flown."

The Banshee is a twin jet plane and looks like the Panther jet. In addition to the Banshee, Air Group Five aboard the Essex has Skyraiders, Corsairs and Panthers

It is of interest to note that Air Group Five is the first carrier air group to re-turn to the Korean war for a second tour of duty.

The Essex is under command of Capt.

oldest aircraft carrier in active service.

The Essex is the first carrier to undergo extensive reconversion to permit her to handle heavier, faster and larger aircraft. An escalator was installed between the flight and hangar decks

Gen. Ruffner to Return

On 29 Aug., the Army announced at ne Pentagon that Maj. Gen. Clark Ruff-USA, Commanding General of the 2d Infantry Division in Korea, which has gained renown for outstanding combat achievements against overwhelming numerical odds, will report to the Office of the Chief of Staff in September.

General Ruffner's successor will be announced by the Far East Command.

In Aug. 1950, shortly after the outbreak of the Korean conflict, General

Ruffner was ordered to Japan, where he became chief of staff of the X Corps. He organized the staff of the X Corps, serving with it through the Inchon and Hungnam campaigns, and won an Oak Leaf Cluster to the Silver Star for gallantry in action. He became Commanding General of the 2d Division on 14 Jan.

General Ruffner holds the Distinguished Service Medal, the Silver Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Bronze Star Medal and the Air Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters.

Extend Tax Exemptions

The Senate Finance Committee voted this week to extend the special tax ex-emption for military personnel in Korea for two more years.

At the same time, the Senate group which apparently declined to act on the proposal that an across-the-board exemp-tion be voted for all military personnel, added a new exemption to cover person-nel wounded in combat areas who are brought back to the United States.

It is recalled that when the special tax exemption was voted for personnel in Korea. THE JOURNAL immediately called attention to the inequitable situation regarding those wounded in action.

Cited repeatedly was the fact that a person assigned to duty in Korea, but never actually with front-line forces, would continue to receive the monthly exemption for the entire period of his service in the defined combat area. How-ever, if a front-line infantryman were wounded during the first month of action and quickly evacuated to the United States for treatment, he would receive only a single month's exemption.

There is little doubt that the Senate will remove this obnoxious inequity and that the House will agree to the provi-sion. To insure equitable treatment to all who have been wounded in the Korean fighting, this proviso should be made retroactive. As THE JOURNAL went to press, the text of the Senate Finance Committee's decisions on the combat tax exemptions was not yet available.

Meanwhile, Senator Herbert Lehman (D-L, N. Y.), has promised that he will strive on the floor of the Senate to have written into the new tax law a provision to give every person in uniform a mini-mum deduction of $600, with an additional $100 for each dependent other than

Senator Lehman had hoped that the Senate Finance Committee would adopt his proposal, which is contained in a bill co-sponsored by four other Senators, three of them Democrats and one a Republican.

Senator McFarland, who is the majority leader, has introduced a bill to re-institute the $1,500 tax exemption for military personnel. To date, however, Senator McFarland has not been as energetic as could be desired in pressing for acceptance of his measure.

It appears that unless Senator Lehman and his group or Senator McFarland is successful during floor debate on the tax bill in gaining an across-the-board exemption for military personnel that almost all men and women in the Armed Forces, including those in the combat zone will pay higher taxes.

Bill Would Restrict Service Retirements Prior to 62

Career officers of the Armed Forces would be barred from retirement before reaching the age of 62 except in case of physical disability according to legis-lation proposed by Representative Walter Norblad (R-Oreg.), a member of the House Armed Services Committee, Mr. Norblad's bill is even more stringent in the matter of officer retirements than the House-approved amendment to the 1952 appropriations bill, now under consideration by the Senate, which limits retirement to physical disability and

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, no commissioned officer of the Armed Forces shall be retired for any reason other than physical disability before attaining the age of 62 years except in cases involving mental or moral factors and then only after consultation in each such instance by the Secretary of the Army, the Secretary of the Navy, or the Secretary of the Air Force, as appropriate with the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and House of Representatives no less than thirty days prior to such retirement."

Explaining why he believes such legislation should be passed, Congressman

"It seems evident to me that since the great majority of them have received their education from taxpayer-supported academies that they should give to the country the benefit and value of their education and experience until reaching a proper age for retirement. Retirement pay for these high ranking officers is very substantial and they contribute noth-ing whatsoever to this fund. Altogether too many men of a younger age are receiving these benefits and then taking jobs with private industry.

There is little doubt but what the overwhelming majority of Senators and Representatives would, if aware of it, strongly condemn a situation in which the survivors of two U. S. military officers, of identical pay grades, killed in a single plane crash in Korea would receive strikingly different benefits.

But this is expectly the situation which

But this is exactly the situation which now exists. The need for rapid remedial action is obvious. Here is an example of the grossly inequitable laws now on the books.

In the illustrative plane crash in Korea, one of the officers is a Regular captain and the other officer is a Reserve captain who has been on active duty for more than 30 days on his current tour. Both officers at the time of death were drawing flight pay. Each has a widow and no other dependents.

The widow of the Regular officer would be eligible to receive a monthly payment of $75 per month from the Veterans Ad-ministration. If it had not been deter-mined that Korea represented a wartime situation, this monthly payment would be only $60—the peacetime rate.

situation, this monthly payment would be only $60—the peacetime rate.

However, the Reserve captain's widow would be eligible to receive $254.78 per month under provisions of the Federal Employment Compensation Act, which is in effect because Korea is held, for this purpose, to be a peacetime situation.

Clearly, the Government, in recognizing Korea both as a wartime and peacetime situation, is doing what it can to insure that survivors get the highest possible benefits. What the Government is not doing, however, is enacting equitable legislation to remove the great discrepancy between Regular and non-Regular compensation to survivors.

Nor is this the only complexity and dis-

Nor is this the only complexity and discrepancy in existing law. The fact of the matter is that if it had been a Navy Reserve senior lieutenant (the equivalent of an Army or Air Force captain) or a Marine Corps Reserve captain who was flying with the Regular Air Force captain at the time of the fatal crash, the survivors of the Navy and Marine Corps Reserve officer would be entitled only to the $75 V.A. payment instead of the $254.78 FECA benefit if the Navy and Marine Corps officer had been on active duty more than 30 days at the time of death. Reserve senior lieutenant (the equivalent

Just as the United States, for beneficient reasons, permits a situation to ex-ist where officers of the same nation, fighting in the same battle zone, are considered variously at peace or war, so it also presently condones an intolerable situation wherein survivors of officers of the same rank, who die in the same plane crash, can receive greatly dissimilar bene-

The Army and Air Force Reserve offi-cer, it is to be noted, is covered under FECA whenever on active duty in peacetime—whether up to 30 days or beyond.
The Navy and Marine Corps Reserve officer is eligible for FECA benefits to his survivors only for periods of less than 30 days' service.

Members of the Air National Guard

Members of the Air National Guard and National Guard and certain AUS and AFUS officers are not eligible at all for the FECA survivors payments.

The inequities are so apparent that there is cause for wonder that Congress has not been pressed more energetically to remedy the problem. A possible explanation for this acceptance of patently unjust legislation lies in the fact that unit 1949, in almost all cases, survivors benefits payments under the V.A. were higher than those under FECA, originally passed in 1939.

The great difference between survivors' benefits available under the V.A. and those which are available to beneficiaries of eligible personnel under FECA are illustrated in the following chart.

The dramatic fact is that under the DECA plan beneficiaries might receive

The dramatic fact is that under the FECA plan, beneficiaries might receive payment as high as $525 a month. Under the V.A. plan, an officer's widow could receive as little as $60 a month.

As was stated, when section 5 relating to military service was written into the Federal Employment Compensation Act of 1939, rates of survivors' benefits gen-

Federal Employment Compensation Act of 1939, rates of survivors' benefits generally were smaller than those available from the V.A. This is true at the present time for survivors of all enlisted men, except those in the top two grades, according to Defense officials.

But P.L. 357 of the 81st Congress liberalized the FEC benefits and since 14 Oct. 1949, the FEC benefits have held out greater security for beneficiaries of thousands of non-Regular personnel than is available to beneficiaries of Regulars.

sands of non-Regular personnel than is available to beneficiaries of Regulars. Typically, the widow of a Regular sec-ond lieutenant killed in Korea would re-ceive $75 per month, while the widow of a Reserve second lieutenant who died of service-connected cause would be paid $148.84 a month, or $193.84 a month if the officer was receiving flight pay.

It is emphasized again that all Army and Air Force Reserve Corps officers are covered in time of peace on all active duty, and again, insofar as FECA is concerned, the United States is at peace. Korea notwithstanding.

Navy and Marine Corps Reserve officers were covered under FECA in peacetime only and for service of less than 30 days' duration until 1946.

duration until 1946.

When World War II ended, it was ascertained that the Naval Reserve Act of 1938 extended coverage to Reservists in time of peace, because they were no longer covered by Veterans' Compensation. However, because the Navy wanted to retain some of its Reservists on active duty (particularly doctors who had benefited from Navy VR training), the Navy did not officially call an end to the war with Germany and Japan. (It has yet to do so.) do so.)

At the same time, the Navy had an active Reserve program in progress and, because aviators under this program were occasionally killed in training flights, the Navy had the Naval Reserve Act of 1938 amended in August 1946 so that personnel on active training duty for less than 30 days would be entitled to Federal Em-ployee Compensation benefits in time of peace or war.

Navy and Marine Reservists now are re-called for longer periods than 30 days, but it is not possible for these Reservists to collect FEC benefits unless they are killed during the first 30 days after recall.

The following is a comparison re-capitulation of salient features in exist-ing law regarding survivors benefits as pertains to the V.A. benefits and those available to eligible beneficiaries under the FECA plan.

Dept. Approves Mashbir Bill

The Department of Defense has notified the Senate Committee on Armed Services of its approval of S. 888, a bill to authorize the appointment of Sidney F. Mashbir, colonel, AUS, to the permanent grade of colonel in the Regular Army.

On 29 June, the Department of Defense disapproved similar Senate and House bills in relation to Colonel Mashbir, asserting that it could not "favorably consider the enactment of this legislation because it is not in consonance with equitable administration of Department of the Army procurement policies. To reinstate Colonel Mashbir on the basis of his World War II service would require consideration of other officers with distinguished service for appointment in the higher grades of the Regular Army. Ex-cellent service alone is not sufficient to justify an appointment in the Regular Army, nor is it deemed sufficient when coupled with a misconception on the part of an individual which has not been induced by any official action of the Depart-ment of the Army."

In the reversal letter, Acting Secretary of the Army Archibald S. Alexander stated:

stated:
"This Department recommended against the enactment of two previous bills, S. 1513 and H. R. 4228. In contrast to these earlier bills, S. 881 is carefully drafted so as to minimize the possibility of the proposed legislation being considered as a precedent for other bills authorizing the appointment of officers to the Regular Army. In this regard the present bill indicates the uniqueness of the circumstances surrounding Colonel Mashbir's case.

"It is provided that Colonel Mashbir would not be included, by reason of such appointment, in the authorized number of colonels on the active list of the Regular Army in the administration of any provision of law limiting the number of such colonels. No permanent increase in the authorized number of colonels on the active list of the Regular Army would be authorized by reason of the enactment of this act. Nor would any back pay or allowances accrue to Colonel Mashbir by reason of the passage of this act for any period prior to the day of its enactment."

"On further reconsideration the Department of Defense withdraws its objection to the present narrowly restricted partment of Defense withdraws its objection to the present narrowly restricted bill. This action has been approved by Secretary Pace."

The facts, "established by unimpeachable and unchallenged evidence," leading to this action were that Colonel Mashbir "resigned from the Regular Army wideshears his conditions and to time under honorable conditions and at a time when existing law authorized his reappointment: that he resigned in order to pointment; that he resigned in order to carry out a secret and hazardous military mission at his own expense, no public funds being legally available for such purpose; and that he resigned in the be-lief that he could be reappointed to his former grade in the Regular Army upon completion of such military mission; but completion of such military mission; was denied such reappointment by an administrative ruling theretofore unknown

EUCOM Rotation Plan

The new European Command rotation

or new European Command rotation plan will get under way about 1 Nov.

Although it is dependent upon the flow of replacements from the United States, European Command officials have set up the new plan to cut back the length of overseas tours of duty progressively until rotation can be maintained on a normal three-year tour of duty basis rome. mal three-year tour of duty basis some-time after June 1952. The present rota-tion system is based on a four-year overseas tour of duty.

The new schedule is tentative and may be speeded up or slowed down according to the number of replacements available from the United States. Under the new plan, those scheduled to return to the United States this year will leave at about the time they are currently slated to depart. The probable rotation date of personnel now scheduled for return to the United States in January, February, and March, 1952 will be December, 1951. Those ticketed for return in April, May and June, 1952, will probably depart in January, 1952.

Personnel whose four years will be up

Personnel whose four years will be up in July, August, or September, 1952, will probably go in February, 1952. The October, November, and December, 1952 categories are slated for departure in March, 1952, under the new plan.

Men scheduled to leave in January, February, and March, 1953, may be returned to the U. S. as early as April, 1952. It is hoped that the April and May, 1953 brackets will be able to leave by May, 1952. The new plan calls for those scheduled for rotation after May, 1953, to be uled for rotation after May, 1953, to be returned to the United States after three years of overseas duty.

Individuals in key positions are provided an opportunity to volunteer to serve out the full 48 months tour, by submitting written applications through channels for approval by European Command Headquarters.

Think of it! It takes all this to provide 18,000 combat troops with a day's bread ration. Then imagine what it takes to bake for 155 million Americans. Each day we consume over 40 million loaves of bread! Each year we spend over three and a half billion dollars for bakery products! Thanks to the skill and speed of our great Baking Industry, we as Americans can enjoy and afford more top-quality baked products than any other nation.

American Machine & Foundry Company is proud of its contribution to the skill and speed of the Baking Industry. Since 1924, AMF has helped produce better products faster and more economically through its sanitary, high-speed bakery equipment. For example, a single AMF oven bakes up to 8,000 lbs. of dough per hour. Another machine, the Super Standard Wrapper, packages up to 65 loaves per minute. Other AMF equipment helps turn out cakes and pies and rolls that any housewife would be proud to call her own, and at prices she can afford!

Atlantic Fleet Maneuvers
Atlantic Fleet Headquarters announced this week that the annual war games held by the Navy in the Atlantic and Caribbean areas will get underway next month and continue into November.
This year, additional emphasis will be placed on training which involves mine-sweeping and minelaying exercises—sub-jects which have held the attention of top Naval officers in recent months due the use of mines by Communist forces Korean waters.

Ships of the Atlantic Fleet, together with Marine ground and air units, will be split into opposing forces including surface, air and submarine units. They will range from the Virginia Capes to Puerto Rican waters, simulating "a series of campaigns which might conceivably take place in any part of the world during a possible future war." Atlantic Fleet Headquarters said. All types of Naval ships and planes will be utilized in the war games.

A fast carrier task force will sail from Norfolk, Va., in late October to launch a simulated strike at an "enemy" advanced base on Vieques Island, east of Puerto Rico. Later, the force will conduct maneuvers and amphibious landing exercises in that area and then swing exercises in that area and then swing north again in November to assault the "enemy" in an amphibious landing at Onslow Beach, N. C.

Admiral Lynde D. McCormick, new Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, will be in overall command of the war games. His headquarters has an any overall that the latest devices and technology. nounced that the latest devices and techniques perfected by both the surface submarine stalkers and the underseas fleet will be utilized in the exercise.

Denies USNR Payments

The Comptroller General, in decision B-49360, has ruled that "Officers appointed in the Naval Reserve or Marine Corps in the Naval Reserve or Marine Corps Reserve pursuant to the provisions of the Naval Aviation Reserve Act of 1939 or the Naval Aviation Reserve Act of 1939 or the Naval Aviation Cadet Act of 1942 whose appointments were terminated for the purpose of accepting commissions in the Regular Navy or Marine Corps are not entitled to the lump-sum payment authorized by section 12 of the 1942 act for aviation reserve officers released from for aviation reserve officers released from active duty.'

Commenting upon the decision, the Comptroller General stated: "Any disparities which may exist as between dif-ferent classes of Naval reserve officers under the law as presently applied would be relatively insignificant compared to the major disparity in favor of the Navy officers which would result from paying such a bonus to officers commissioned in the Regular Navy which is clearly denied officers commissioned in the Regular Army under like circumstances."

New Navy Captains Named

President Truman has approved the report of a Navy selection board which recommended 277 line commanders for promotion to captain.

Included in the group were 26 Reserve officers. Of the remaining 251 Regular Navy officers, 233 were picked from within the selection zone, 17 from above the zone, and one officer from below the zone. The largest Naval Academy class represented was the Class of 1933 with a total of 128 officers selected for promo-tion. Next largest was the Class of 1934 with 47. Dates of initial rank for the remaining officers ranged from 1928 to 1942.

Ages of the Regular officers range from Ages of the Regular oncers range from 39 to 49, with the majority falling into the 39-44 age group. Thirty-four of the Regulars are submariners (32 of whom are eligible for submarine command); 64 are Naval Aviators (heavier than air); 20 are Engineering Duty Officers; eight are Aeronautical Engineering Duty Officers; and nine are Special Duty Officers.

Those considered by the board were commanders of the Navy and Naval Reserve on active duty on or before 1 July 1951, who will have had five or more years' service in grade by 30 June 1952.

President of the board was Rear Adm. President of the board was Rear Adm. John H. Brown, jr. Other members were Rear Admirals Rico Botta, Theodore C. Lonnquest, Hugh E. Haven, Ralph E. #### Tactical Aviation Aired

Concurrently with reports that con-troversies regarding the size and employ-ment of tactical air power are now un-der scrutiny by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the issue was brought into prominence again over the past weekend with state-ments by Maj. Gen. W. R. Wolfinbarger, USAF, Commanding General of the Ninth Air Force, and General Mark W. Clark, Chief, Army Field Forces.

Both officers talked to reporters at Ft. Bragg, N. C., during the "Southern Pine" war games. General Wolfinbarger maintained that the Air Force should not adopt the close support tactics used so successfully by Marine Corps flyers in Korea.

"I do not wish to leave an impression that I am in any way critical of the Ma-rine concept of tactical air," General Wolfinbarger said. They are the best in the business in close support tactics. For the mission they have, they are the best. "But it is not the same mission as a large land air force," continued General Wolfinbarger.

He contended that tactical air should not be broken up into "penny packets" for centrol at division and corps levels. This, the Air Force general stated, "was a faxhole" viewpoint. He argued that control of tactical air should be kept at army level and no lower.

General Clark, making clear to reporters that he was replying to General Wolfinbarger, declared that Army commanders should be given operational control of tactical air units. Present policy to have doing Army AF control of tactical air units.

to have joint Army-AF control of tactical air units at army level.

General Clark said "we are going to get the best air support we can get for the infantryman. I am sure we are going to get it before we are through. The Field Forces Chief said he felt that "such class air power as can be alleted to him. close air power as can be alloted to him should be placed under the operational control of the Army commander."

A special subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee reported this week on the results of an investigation into the establishment of a base for two Air Force troop carrier wings in the general vicinity of Pope Air Force Base, Fort Bragg, N. C.

After inspecting three possible North Carolina locations — Raleigh-Durham, Laurinburg-Maxton and Goldsboro—a majority of the subcommittee recom-mended the establishment of a home base for the two troop carrier wings at the Raleigh-Durham Airfield.

Representatives Dewey Short (R-Mo) and Charles H. Elston (R-Ohio), in a minority report, recommended the reactivation of Seymour Johnson Field, Goldsboro, N. C.

boro, N. C.

The majority of the subcommittee stated that an additional expenditure of ten million dollars would be necessary at Raleigh-Durham, but that they believed it to be "justified" because of the "greater availability of housing . . . and the more extensive postemergency use possible in that area."

Representatives Short and Elston pro-Representatives Short and Eiston protested that no such additional expenditure is justified "at a time when our appropriations for defense must be more closely examined than ever before." They said they believe the Goldsboro area can furnish adequate housing "and given the opportunity, reasonable postemergency use."

USAFIT Reactor Course

The spreading effort to harness atomic energy within an aircraft powerplant has generated an increased requirement for officer specialists in the field of Re-actor Technology, according to an an-nouncement from the USAF Institute of Technology, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

"Research into aircraft nuclear propulsion will unquestionably continue to boost our need for graduate training for officers." said Brig. Gen. L. I. Davis, USAFIT Commandant, in a statement outlining the Institute's plan for officer education in Reactor Technology at Atomic Energy Commission facilities.

"Our officers and airmen cannot perform their difficult and often dangerous tasks at maximum efficiency if they must worry about the welfare of their families in the event of their own death."-MAJ. GEN. JOHN H. MCCORMICK, USAF.

"Enlightened Self-Interest." One can not read the testimony General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower gave the Senate Subcommittee during its visit to Paris without feeling the deep convictions and sense of urgency impelling him in the building up of Europe's defenses against the threat of Communism. With Europe's capacity for producing 50 million tons of steel annually and our own 104 millions, he pointedly brought out, Russia's 36 million tons would give her a slim chance in a long war of attrition and exhaustion. With that productive capacity and other similar factors taken under the Soviet banner, our problem would be enormously greater. If we are going to help Europe, he told the Senators, "let us do it quickly and get it done." Otherwise, he said, if we let it drag on and on, we are not going to inspire either the maximum effort or the maximum confidence and we are not going to be ready by the time that there can conceivably be the extreme danger. The General is confident that the task can be done if we are willing to recognize what is needed and to make the necessary sacrifice to bring it about.

General Eisenhower defined military strength as three part-"it is the spiritual strength of a nation; it is its economic strength; and finally, it is its military strength in being, or readily mobilizable." Russia, he said, has a low order of both spiritual and economic strength, but an extraordinary amount in military strength in being. "which alarms us no end." He viewed our total power as completely overshadowing that of Russia. We have tremendous economic resources and great spiritual strength "but we just haven't carried enough into our military strength."

We hope every member of Congress will study this testimony.

Dim View Department. Ladies that they are, the members of the WAC and WAF are remaining mild tempered while continuing to pay something for nothing. Each month, an automatic ten-cent deduction is made from the pay of all Regular enlisted women of the Army and Air Force for the U.S. Soldiers Home Fund. Service legal officials insist that the women have a right to live at the Home; but to date no steps have been taken to make this a co-educational facility. Consequently, the ladies are taking a "dime dim view" of the current situation.

War in Space. We have barely entered the era of atomic energy, guided missiles with homing devices, rockets and other weapons that but a short while ago were in the realm of the fantastic, when the curtain is slowly being pulled aside to give us a view into the exploration and utilization of the space beyond the earth. Already we are assured by the distinguished rocket expert, Dr. Wernher von Braun, of the Army Ordnance Research and Development office at Ft. Bliss, Tex., that engineering knowledge is sufficient to build a multi-stage craft capable of propulsion beyond the earth's attraction. The principal hindrance, aside from cost, is the need for solution of the medical problems involved. Now, we find this field being examined in detail in a new publication of the University of Illinois Press entitled "Space Medicine" to which a number of outstanding Service men have contributed. Maj. Gen. Harry G. Armstrong, Surgeon General of the Air Force, tells in the opening chapter of the origin of space medicine as a separate field of ARMY · NAVY · AIR FORCE study in the Air Force which two years ago established a separate department to study it-the only research unit of its kind anywhere. Other chapters are by Col. Paul A. Campbell, director of research at the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine; Dr. Hubertus Strughold, head of the department of Space Medicine; Dr. Heinz Haber, assistant professor of Astrophysics; and Dr. Konrad J. K. Buettner, research fellow in Bioclimatology. The effect of the terrific acceleration involved in getting away from the earth, the absence of weight in the space beyond, the effect of ultraviolet rays, x-rays, cosmic particles, and many other problems are examined. War from a platform in space is no more fantastic now than was the submarine to Jules Vernes.

Remember "Forgotton Men." The Defense Department's decision to raise the ceiling on promotions to the upper warrant officer grades is welcome though long-overdue. It should not, however, serve to further block the enactment of a sound promotion bill for this long forgotten group of service personnel. It is unreasonable that this should be the one group without specific legislation for promotion, being entirely at the mercy of administrative decisions. Thus, when the budget was being held-down in the pre-Korean economy drive it was the warrant officers who suffered through the arbitrary order restricting their top grade to three per cent and the next highest grade to seven per cent. Not only should a promotion bill be enacted for them but there should be better pay and retirement inducements to prevent financial loss as now is suffered by many enlisted men who accept warrants.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago

The occupation of Iran by Russian and British forces definitely strengthens the strategical position of the Powers allied against the Axis.

50 Years Ago

The General Order promulgated this week transferring the Engineer School of the Army from Willets Point, N. Y., to Washington Barracks, Washington, D. C., has probably a deeper significance than is generally considered. There is now little doubt that it is the intention to establish at Washington the long-talked of Army War College.

(Letters to the Editor must have author's name and address, but name will be omitted on publication if writer so states. Longer letters may be extracted for publication.)

Release of Married Women

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Prior to the Korean Affair, the following regulations provided means whereby, upon application a female member of the Armed Forces could seek approval for release from service on the basis of her marital status: Par 2 SR 625-5-5 as amended, Par 2a (1) AR 605-275 as amended, Par 15 AR 625-5, Par 4b SR 615-360-10, Par 26b AR 40-20 as amended, and Par 17a AR 40-25 as amended. (Navy and Air Force regulations not available to me.)

On 23 Aug. 1950 WCL 40082 The Adjutant General suspended provisions as follows: "The following provisions (see above par) of regulations pertaining to separation of female personnel by reason of marriage are suspended. Such personnel may request separation uncurrent directives governing hardship" (AG 210.8 WAC (ALFAG)).

The spirit and necessity of this decision was accepted, in general, in a patriotic, dutiful manner by those affected. As long as an absolute need exists, I am confident that many women, including myself, will persevere in service in the faith that they are making an essential contribution.

But what action or consideration is contemplated regarding reinstatement of the provisions for release on the basis of marital status. Can we hope for some modification of the "freeze" by 23 Aug. 1951, anniversary of the suspension?

No Stars for Air Adjutant Generals

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

With reference to the letter from an Air Adjutant General published in THE JOURNAL, 18 Aug., I would like to submit the following:

General Hap Arnold presented me with a copy of "Global Mission," in which he inscribed, "In appreciation of his efforts for Air Force Administration." When I asked why he used the word, "efforts," he replied with serious sincerity, "I wrote that deliberately because the work of an ambitious Air Adjutant General will for many years be an effort to impress on rated officers the importance of good administration.

General Arnold commented further on the subject substantially as follows-"If you are satisfied to work for the ultimate good of the Air Force, that's fine if you expect your efforts ot be rewarded by a star, get out of the AG business. Remember, rated officers run the Air Force. The doctors and lawyers have their own show, and some few will be generals; in certain other staff sections a few outstanding officers will get a star, maybe two stars, but not the AG. Too many rated officers think the AG job is easy and relatively unimportant."

My opinion is that General Arnold's estimate of The Air Adjutant General situation was correct.

Competitive Tour Integration

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

There appears to be approximately one thousand regular army officers, commissioned from competitive tour, with active commissioned service ranging from 4 to 10 years, who hold a first lieutenant date of rank of 1 Jan. 1951.

There may be hidden reasons why this large block of first lieutenants is necessary; but, not being aware of any, it would seem that the best interests of these officers, as well as the service, would benefit if they were integrated.

I do not consider age an effective criterion of in tegration, and feel that the fairest and most practical method would use years of active commissioned service as a basis.

CHARGES and counter-charges, in bitter and unrestrained language, passed be-tween the United Nations and Communist headquarters as more than a week elapsed without resumption of the cease-fire talks at Kaesong. Nevertheless, the Reds have not completely barred the way to reopening the talks, contending that they are willing to continue if the UN will accept responsibility for the alleged air attack on the Kaesong area.

But General Ridgway places upon the Reds the entire blame both for the "frame-up bombing" (which President Truman labeled as a "masquerade") as well as for the cessation of the conferences. In a message on the 25th he told the Communist high command that when they are "prepared to terminate the suspension of Armistice negotiations, which you declared on Aug. 23" he will again send his representatives to meet with theirs. Except for the unrestrained and intemperate spewing of the Peiping radio, nothing further was heard from the Reds until 28 Aug., when the Communists offered to resume the talks if the UN leaders would admit to their fantastic charge that an Allied plane had attempted to "murder" the Red delegates. The same message "demanded" that UN liaison officers go to Kaesong for a "reinvestigation" of the charges.

GENERAL RIDGWAY was quick to point out that this attempt to get a reinvestigation was most farcical, for when the incident first started the alleged "evidence" and the site of the so-called bombing was examined only in the darkness of a rainy night, the Reds positively declining to permit the UN liaison officers to look at the evidence and site in the daylight of the following morning. After the lapse of such a length of time it is entirely likely that the Reds have fabricated more convictions evidence. A new engle was brought in when Red witnesses. cated more convincing evidence. A new angle was brought in when Red witnesses described the "attacking" plane as coming over the area with its lights lit, something that an Allied plane would certainly not do but which a Communist-staged flight might well have done to assure it being seen by local residents. Subsequently, Admiral Joy's office revealed that at the time of the alleged attack their radar screen had detected an airplane near Kaesong, which, since all of our units have certified that they had no aircraft in the area, must have been a Communist plant. General Ridgway promptly rejected the demand for a reinvestigation and repeated his offer to resume the talks whenever the enemy is prepared to lift the suspension.

One explanation of the peculiar conduct of the Communists is that they wish to regain face by smearing the UN in retaliation for they themselves having been caught red handed violating the neutrality of the Kaesong area by marching armed troops in front of the delegates. They were definitely convicted and forced to give assurances against a repetition. This action, to a considerable extent, offset their original propaganda advantage in having our delegation come to them in an area under their control.

Continuing in his firm attitude, General Ridgway's headquarters said he was ready for anything the Reds choose to do. They can "either continue or break off the talks." The bombing of the Red build-up and rail center at Rashin near the Soviet frontier, a target that had been denied General MacArthur, demonstrated to the Reds that the leaders of the United Nations are solidly behind General Ridgway's determined stand.

▶ WHEN ADMIRAL ALAN G. KIRK, USN, returns to Washington in October he will be in a position to give the administration a more detailed picture of the Kremlin's reaction to the events in Korea. Likewise he can discuss the effect of our ban on military aid to any nation selling arms or other obvious implements of war to the Soviet bloc, which bill has now passed the Senate and awaits action by conferees. The measure is stringent, but does give the President authority to suspend the prohibition in instances where he believes the withholding of aid to an offending nation would injure rather than promote the military security of the United

It is entirely possible that Admiral Kirk may not return to Moscow where he has been stationed since replacing Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, USA, in July 1949. The severe restrictions imposed upon our delegates and staff in Moscow are such that the post is not usually held by a U. S. Ambassador much longer than two years.

► THE JAPANESE PEACE TREATY CONFERENCE, opening in San Francisco next Tuesday, 4 Sept., promises to be far from a placid meeting. Andrei Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, with a 40-man delegation, has left New York by rail going directly to San Francisco to arrive today, three days before the opening of the conference. He did this at the expense of his usual courtesy call upon the President or Secretary of State in Washington. The early arrival at the site of the meeting was doubtlessly arranged to afford the Reds ample opportunity to attempt to contact representatives of the other 44 nations to solicit support of their opposition to the treaty. Gromyko will be fortified in his arguments by the attitude of India, whose Prime Minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, played directly into his hands by abstaining from the conference after submitting a detailed note setting forth India's objections. Nehru's note objected, among other things, to the provision permitting retention of U. S. defense forces in Japan, contended that the treaty should specifically confirm the Soviet Union's acquisition of the Kuriles and South Sakhalin, and criticized the making of the Ryukyus a UN trusteeship with the United States as administering authority, although retaining sovereignty in Japan. The Netherlands Government is also displeased with the treaty and has been attempting to have an interpretive protocol tacked onto it. Their objections center around the waiver of reparations claims, indemnity to war prisoners, and Japanese compliance on fishing restrictions. However, the Dutch definitely do not want to be lined up with the Soviets as obstructionists.

Whether or not India's stand was intended as a friendly gesture to her Soviet whether of not initials stand was intended as a Friendry gesture to her soviet neighbor, it is quite likely that it will be so interpreted in many quarters. Senator Herbert L. Lehman (DL-NY), a strong backer of aid programs, expressed fear along those lines, stating that he feels there may be a "lot of repercussions." The Senator was instrumental in securing the long-term, low interest loan to India, under which many tons of grain already have been sent to her starving population. under which many tons of grain already have been sent to her starving population. It will be noted that while our loan provides 2,000,000 tons of wheat, Russia and Red China have agreed to provide only 650,000 tons and that must be paid for in barter and cash. In addition our Commodity Credit Corporation has subsidized India's purchases of grain sorghums for food to the extent of $8,500,000. Also India is reputed to be scheduled for outright grants of $65,000,000 under the economic aid program this year. In addition, the US has put up 33 per cent of the money for the three loans totalling $62,500,000 which India has obtained from the World Bank.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

September 1951

Fate of the Rangers—The Army's decision to break up its Ranger companies in Korea is seen as evidence of a change in policy which will de-emphasize training of "elite" troops in favor of raising combat effectiveness among as broad a troop base as possible. It is known that for many months, a number of Army officials have been concerned that the Enlisted Career Program places too great an interest on specialization at the sacrifice of basic combat qualifications. In this regard, some Army leaders believe that not enough attention has been paid to the "MOS Soldier" classification.

Similarly, it is stated that widespread utilization of Ranger companies for specialized missions could lead to a situation whereby the specialized troops would be called upon more and more to accomplish tasks for which ordinary infantry troops should be employed.

Army spokesmen said personnel of the Ranger companies in the Far East Command will be transferred to the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, formerly a part of the 11th Airborne Division until it was sent to Korea from Ft. Campbell, Ky. Previously, the Army had assigned one Ranger Company to each division. It was stated that transfer of the Rangers to the 187th RCT will not result in lose of hazardous duty pay.

An Army official related that one of the compelling reasons for the decision to inactivate these companies was the fact that deep patrol missions by small units, for which the Rangers are intended, are made most difficult in FEC by reason of the racial difference between the Oriental and the Caucasian. It was added that the new utilization of the Rangers in the Far East is not expected to affect the training program at Ft. Benning, Ga. This will continue and the Rangers probably will continue to wear special identification insignia. But primarily their function in the future will be to teach other troops what was learned at the Ranger center, which also will continue to be an important activity for development of combat techniques.

Apparently, what the Army wants is not fewer Fangers, but rather that as many of its men as possible master the special skills of the Rangers.

General Scott C.G. At Ft. Belvoir—Maj. Gen. Stanley L. Scott, USA, Director of the Office of Military Assistance, Department of Defense, will become Commanding General of the Engineer Center at Ft. Belvoir, Va., on 15 Sept. He will succeed Maj. Gen. Douglas L. Weart, USA, who was retired 31 Aug. after 40 years' service, and General Scott, in turn, will be replaced by Brig. Gen. George H. Olmsted, USAR, (USMA '22). General Scott, who was ordered to duty in the Office of the Secretary of Defense from his post as Commanding General, U. S. Army Alaska, became Director of the Office of Military Assistance in November 1950. He succeeded Maj. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, USA, now Commanding General of the 11th Airborne Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky.

The Nameless War-Senator William K. Knowland (R-Calif.), a member of the Armed Services Committee, had declared his intention to urge passage of legislation which would permit official designation of the war in Korea. He told the Senate that at the present time, because no designation has been given to the fighting in Korea, it is not possible for a family to have inscribed on the grave marker of a loved one the fact that death came on the Korean battlefield.

Senator Knowland related that a father had written him of efforts to have such an inscription made on the grave marker of his son, a Marine who had won the Navy Cross. "Permission to do so was refused," said Senator Knowland. "They (the family) then offered to pay for a marker indicating that he was killed in the Korean War, but that permission was also refused."

Senator Saltonstal (R-Mass.), a member of the Armed Services Committee also, observed that "there is nothing more important to the family of a soldier who has been killed than to have a proper marking on the gravestone."

It is to be expected that members of Congress will pursue this matter with Defense Department officials and officers of the Battle Monuments Commission.

Korea Raises Army Actions to 136-The three campaigns for which bronze battle stars have been authorized in the Korean fighting has raised to 136 the total number of engagements fought by the U.S. Army.

Actually, the first major engagement was fought a month before the National Army became a reality. That was at Ticonderoga, following which there were 10 other major campaigns during the Revolutionary War—the last, at Yorktown in the fall of 1781.

From 1790 to 1891, the Indian Wars accounted for 14 major campaigns, while during the War of 1812 there were six major campaigns and 10 more against the Mexicans, beginning in May 1846 and ending at Chapultepec in September 1847.

An Army report shows that 25 more campaigns were added to the list during the Civil War and in the War With Spain in 1898 there were three more. In 1900, three more battle stars were authorized for the force in the China Relief Expedition.

The Philippines Insurrection, which started in February 1899 and did not end until June 1913, resulted in 11 more engagements.

American soldiers were in action in 13 major battles in World War I, and the Axis powers were not defeated in World War II until American soldiers had written their most glorious pages of history in 37 major campaigns. Twenty-one were fought in the Asiatic-Pacific Theater while 16 were completed successfully in the European-African-Middle Eastern Theater.

During World War II campaigns, the Army engaged in 58 major amphibious operations out of a total of 61 such actions that took place in all theaters of combat, the Army account relates. U.S. infantrymen also engaged in a total of 324 secondary amphibious actions, mostly shore-to-shore operations as distinguished from ship-to-shore actions which characterized the major amphibious engagements.

For the fighting in Korea, these battle stars are authorized:
1. United Nations Defensive—27 June-15 Sept. 1950.
2. United Nations Offensive—16 Sept.-2 Nov. 1950.

 Chinese Communist Intervention—3 Nov. 1950, to a date to be determined.
 In addition, the Decorations and Awards section of the Army has stated the subject of declaring a fourth major campaign now is under study.

Admiral Sherman's Death—The current issue of The Navy, official organ of the Navy League of Great Britain, contains an editorial on the passing of Admiral Forrest P. Sherman.

The British publication observes: "The death of Admiral Sherman strikes a heavy blow. Not only at the United States of America which he served with so much courage, initiative, and distinction both in war and peace, but at their friends and allies—quorum pars non minima—to whom his swift brain, wide experience, and suave diplomacy were of the utmost value and importance. At this particular time, when leadership and friendship on both sides are of supreme importance, he, as it may seem, could least be spared. But this much is always true of great countries which produce great leaders. They produce also the great successors of their great men. In the instant of loss the gap caused by death, particularly when death comes suddenly and unexpectedly, seems not only difficult but impossible to fill. And then the gap is filled, the successor shows himself, and the pattern of history is followed where a break seemed inevitable. We may have our own future in our own hands, we may be the playthings of fate. But this much is surely true—that no man is indispensable to his own time or to the page of history which is being written before our blind eyes and in despite of all our puny hopes, fears and actions. So while we pay our respect to a great sailor and statesman and record our sympathy with firm friends and allies, we may be sure that the gap will be filled and that the pattern will be continued."

500th Pole Flight—The 500th flight over the North Pole was completed last month by the 58th Strategic Weather Reconnaissance Squadron when a Boeing B-29 piloted by Capt. Pat Bass touced down at Eielson AFB, Alaska. Squadron commander is Lt. Col. Joseph O. Fletcher.

Members of the flight crew on the 500th mission were: Captain Bass, aircraft commander: Capt. Ben H. Nicholls, co-pilot; 1st Lt. Benford B. Harris, pilot; Capt. Bennett O. Moyle, weather observer; Capt. Sterline R. Funk, navigator; Capt. Eugene C. Murphy, navigator; Capt. Frank P. Weil, radar operator; M/Sgt. Ennis Hilbrant, flight engineer; S/Sgt. Fred W. Joiner, radio operator; S/Sgt. Leroy L. Jackson, radio operator; Cpl. Billy J. Cook, dropsonde operator; and Sgt. Elba W. Miller, jr., crew chief.

Army Planes In Air Show—The growing importance of the Army's use of its own integrated aircraft was dramatized during the recent National Air Races in Detroit. For the first time, Army aircraft participated in the exhibits and demonstrations at this air show. Planes on exhibit were the L-15, L-16, L-17, L-19, L-20 and the LC-126, and the helicopters H-13 and H-18.

The liaison planes and helicopters were used in aerial demonstrations before an estimated crowd of 165,000 to show the increasing utilization of small aircraft by Army units.

Arm Bands for Engineers—The Army Corps of Engineers has adopted a new arm band for the use of personnel engaged in emergency work. Made of bleached cotton duck, four inches wide and 17 inches long, the band will have the Engineer castle in white on a red background. It will be used to identify Engineer personnel engaged in flood fighting and other emergency work.

Heads AF Research Facility—Maj. Gen. James F. Phillips, USAF, has been named Commanding General of the Air Force Cambridge, Mass., Research Center. He has been serving as Air Force Secretary of the Research and Development Board in Washington since December 1947.

The Cambridge Research Center is conducting basic and applied research in radio physics. It is one of the subordinate commands of the Air Research and Development Command, with headquarters in Baltimore, Md.

Rivers and Harbors Chairman—Maj. Gen. George J. Nold, USA, Deputy Chief of Engineers, has been appointed Chairman of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors in addition to his other duties. He succeeds Maj. Gen. John S. Bragdon, retired, as Chairman.

The Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, a permanent board consisting of seven senior Engineer officers, is required by law to review all reports to Congress on river and harbor, flood control and multiple-purpose projects of the Corps of Engineers. It also compiles or reviews special reports to the Chief of Engineers at his request. Meetings of the Board are usually held in Washington, D. C., every month or six weeks, at which public hearings are held. Present members of the Board are: General Nold, Chairman; Brig. Gen. Orville E. Walsh, North Pacific Division Engineer, Portland, Oregon; Brig. Gen. Don G. Shingler, Missouri River Division Engineer, Omaha; Col. Louis W. Prentiss, Southwestern Division Engineer, Dallas; Col. H. R. Cole, Resident Member, and Col. Wendell P. Trower, Great Lakes Division Engineer, Chicago. One vacancy exists on the Board.

Haven Via Helicopter—An Air Rescue Service report relates that two helicopter pilots of the 3d ARS in Korea—"the most highly decorated squadron in the Far East Air Forces"—have saved the lives of more than 420 fighting men of the U. N. Force.

Capt, Lynden B. Thomason has saved 224 men in 124 combat heicopter rescue missions and 1st Lt. Elmer Barnes is credited with 111 combat rescue missions during which he saved the lives of 196 critically wounded troops. Captain Thomason and Lieutenant Barnes have appropriate home towns for their busy rescue activities; the former is from Paradise, Calif.; the latter, from Crossroads, N. M.

The 3d ARS is credited with saving more than 2300 troops since outbreak of hostilities.

MATS Officers Shift—New Deputy Commander of MATS' Atlantic Division will be Col. Joseph G. Hopkins, USAF, now Deputy Chief of Staff for transport operations, Pacific Division.

Colonel Hopkins, who leaves the Territory sometime next week, has been at Hickam since late June 1949. He will replace Col. John W. Warren who has been transferred to Iceland where he will assume the same position in the Iceland Defense Force.

Army Dental Corps—Col. Earle J. McClung was retired from active service on 31 July having reached the age of 60 years on 17 July 1951. Colonel McClung graduated from the North Pacific Dental College of Oregon in 1915 and was appointed Dental Surgeon in the Regular Army in June 1917. He graduated from the Army Dental School Postgraduate Course in 1934. His last assignment was as chief of Dental Service at Madigan Army Hospital, Fort Lewis, Wash.

The following dental officers have been selected to attend the course in advanced dentistry at the Army Medical Service Graduate School, Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C.: Lieutenant Colonels Ogden M. Frank, Henry A. Goodall, and Rubert A. Weeks; Majors William D. Love, Howard W. McCall, Jack Roper, and Marvin M. Kuhn.

Marvin M. Kuhn.

Col. Jack B. Caldwell, Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C., visited the Signal Corps Photographic Center, Long Island City, N. Y., recently for the purpose of acting as technical advisor for professional training films on oral surgery.

Army Arctic Dentist—Maj. Howard C. Largeman, DC, Post Dental Surgeon, Army Arctic Training Center, Big Delta AFB, Alaska, was the official U. S. Army Alaskan Command representative to the Second Annual Territory of Alaska Dental Convention, which was held at Juneau. Major Largeman was recently honored with Fellowships in the International College of Dentists (FICD) and the American Association for the Advancement of Science (FAAAS). He holds the distinction of being the first Medical Department Officer to graduate from the rugged Winter and Summer Courses of the Army Arctic Indoctrination School at Big Delta.

General Makes 100,000th Jump—The 100,000th paratrooper of the 11th Airborne to hit the silk over Ft. Campbell, Ky., since the Division arrived in 1949 was Maj. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, USA, commanding general, who jumped last week with Division Artillery troopers. Leading General Lemnitzer out of the plane on the 99,999th jump was SFC Anthony W. Martin, division operations sergeant, who made his 100th jump.

Sergeant Martin is a Master Parachutist and a paratrooper veteran of both World War II and the Korean conflict. Following General Lemnitzer out of the door was Capt. George Casey, his aide de camp, who started the second 100,000 jumps.

The first 11th Airborne jump at Ft. Campbell was made in February 1949 by Maj. Gen. William M. Miley, then division commander. Since that date, there has been an average of 100 jumps a day, with only two fatalities for the entire period.

Special Assts. to Air Surgeon General—Col. Jack Buel, USAF (MSC), has become the Special Assistant to the Surgeon General of the Air Force. He assumes major administration duties on behalf the Office of the Surgeon General. Colonel Buel has been deputy for research to the USAF School of Aviation Medicine, research advisor and chief of the department of psychology. He recently was the Air Force representative in the working group on "human behavior under conditions of military service" for the Office of Secretary of Defense.

"The Other Battle"—Ways in which Air Force officers can help fight the economic war and, at the same time, add to their own stature, have been outlined by Col. Harris B. Hull, USAF, in an article, "The Other Battle," published in the Air University Quarterly Review.

Among the suggestions which Colonel Hull makes are these: an awakened consciousness that the problem of economies belongs to all Air Force personnel; tighter assignments during expansion in the fields in which Air Force personnel are specialists and where they can make the greatest contribution; careful placement of the incoming reservist to exploit his civilian background; scheduling of work loads to avoid the simultaneous accumulation of several peaks; easier interchange of personnel to assist during periods of heavy strain; careful analysis of missions of staff at higher and lower levels in order to avoid duplication; periodic review of the over-all direction of the effort of each command to compensate for the gradual changes of mission; and finally leadership.

Colonel Hull states that "far too many of us assume that economy is someone else's business" and he points out that "economical utilization of resources can never be attained unless the responsible staff officers and the unit commanders are implied with the united to the color of the responsible staff officers.

imbued with the urgency of the problem."

He adds that "young officers turn instinctively to their superiors for example. If they see waste they will do little to curb waste within their own units. If they see overstaffing, if they do not see a premium on efficiency, they are not likely to seek efficiency."

Discussing the career of an Air Force officer, he states that each tour "must be pointed in the direction of bolstering his basic skill."

"To develop as experts," he asserts, "we must specialize in a general area. Does this mean that we must stay in one position throughout our careers? Certainly not. Does this mean that an occasional tour in an allied field of effort is to be turned down? Again, no. . . . It means that usually we rotate in our own general area, confining our occasional sorties for the most part to associated fields where the training we receive will be of some benefit to us in the development of our basic specialty."

Chemical Corps Depot Moved—Army Chemical Corps' spare parts depot, now located at the Army Chemical Center, Edgewood, Md., will be moved to the Memphis, Tenn., General Depot this month. Maj. Gen. E. F. Bullene, USA, Chief Chemical Officer, has announced. The depot stores and issues spare parts for such chemical equipment as gas masks, flamethrowers, smoke generators, etc., for the Navy and the Air Force, as well as for the Army. Transfer of the depot to Memphis will facilitate the distribution of parts to service units in the United States and overseas, and will provide needed space at Edgewood.

Signal Corps Officer Decorated—The man who organized the air lift of the first ground troops into Korea at the outbreak of hostilities there, Col. William M. Thames, jr., former Assistant Signal Officer, Far East Command, has been awarded the Legion of Merit. Maj. Gen. George I. Back, U. S. Army Chief Signal Officer who was FECOM Signal Officer when Korean hostilities began, made the presentation in the Pentagon on 27 Aug. Colonel Thames has returned to the United States to attend the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

First ground troops ordered from Japan to Korea were Signal Corps specialists, sent to establish essential communications between the combat zone and General Headquarters in Tokyo.

Jet Contract Let

Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton Corporation, Eddystone, Pa., has announced that it has received a contract from the Wright
Aeronautical Corporation, Wood-Ridge,
N. J., to manufacture the "hot" or turbine end of the Wright J-65 jet engines.
These turbines are to be completed at Baldwin's Eddystone Shops.

The Wright Aeronautical contract calls for a continuing supply of turbines for the J-65 jet engines which power the F-84-F swept-wing fighter planes. Value of the contract was not disclosed.

Lift W.O. Promotion Ban

Air Force is preparing to select a number of airmen for appointment to the W-1 warrant officer pay grade An increase in the W-1 category, even under the "economy campaign" 3 and 7 per cent provisos should mean some increase in the higher warrant officer pay grades.

The Army probably will convene a higher warrant officer pay grades.

The Army probably will convene a board during September or early in Octoer, at the latest, to name warrant officers for promotion to W-2, W-3 and W-4.

The primary zone of consideration, it is understood, will include for promotion to W-3 those W-2 warrant officers on the lineal list who are still serving in that grade, and similarly for promotion to W-4 those warrant officers who were designated as W-3 on the lineal list.

However, it is likely that some promotions will go to particularly outstanding warrant officers who have been advanced subsequent to their designation on the lineal list. Probably six months of duty in grade during the current tour will be required.

in grade during the current tour will be required.

Details are expected to be released shortly. It is apparent, however, that the Army, which has repeatedly cited the need for advancing warrant officers to merited higher ranks, will lose little time offecting these proportions which have in effecting these promotions, which have been blocked for more than a year by the Department of Defense "economy" order.

The Navy probably will convene a selection board in the fall to promote warrant officers to W-3. No firm date had been set for convening of this board, as

been set for convening of this board, as THE JOURNAL went to press.

During the past year, THE JOURNAL repeatedly has criticized the arbitrary ceiling on warrant officer promotions, imposed as one of the final actions of the the ill-timed Department of Defense the ill-timed Department of Defense economy program.

With the outbreak of war in Korea and the huge expansion of the Defense budget, it became apparent immediately that the warrant officer promotion limitation should be rescinded.

However, at that time the Personnel Policy Board of the Department of Defense, now integrated in the office of Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg, was reported at work on an Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg, was reported at work on an overall, long-range warrant officer promotion policy.

Consequently, it was decided to wait and the months went by with no relief for the warrant officers. On Capitol Hill, Representative Pat Sutton (D-Tenn.), appealed to the Department of Defense to submit legislation to guarantee a "square deal" for the warrant officers. Finally, impatient, he introduced legislation to this end.

It is recalled that late in 1950, the Personnel Policy Board had issued a policy statement which declared it to be the intention of the Department of Defense to make it possible for all qualified warran officers to reach the pay grade W4 before retirement.

Until Under Secretary Lovett's action in rescinding the 3 and 7 per cent ban, however, the Department's statement was accepted by warrant officers as being only an empty promise.

Now, however belatedly, a warrant offi-cer promotion program can be devised by the various Services to insure adequate career opportunities for this skilled class of military personnel.

Favors New GI Bill

Navy Secretary Dan A. Kimball said this week that the Navy favors the adop-tion of "legislation which would give Korean veterans rights roughly compara-ble to those conferred under the so-called G.I. Bill of Rights."

G.I. Bill of Rights."

Speaking before the National Encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in New York City on 28 Aug., Mr. Kimball said the Navy has had the proposed legislation "under intensive study." Provisions which are favored by the Navy, he said, include a replacement service to assist Korean veterans in their reentry to civilian life, and the extension of loan provisions to those still in the service.

The Navy "is generally in favor" of educational benefits, he said, "but not to the extent they were provided by the previous act. We want every man in service whose education was interrupted to have the opportunity to resume study and complete his education. We also want have the opportunity to resume study and complete his education. We also want those who have a sincere desire to learn to have every opportunity to secure as high a degree of education as possible." He pointed out that the Navy "does not" favor "the scatter-gun approach" which led to "outright abuses under the previous est." vious act."

Secretary Kimball also discussed the pending Armed Forces Reserve Bill, which he said "would spell out in legislation for all Reserves to see and understand, many of the rights, privileges, and duties which heretofore have been gov-erned by administrative regulations, and which have been subject to the unusual changes and obscurities of the admin-istrative process."

realistic, and diversified discussion of all problems which arise. The Naval War College has by these methods been able to escape the evils of provincialism and rigidity without yielding to the temptations of the sensational and superficial.

Thirdly, the stimulus for hard work at the College is the individual's own desire to learn and improve himself. Grades are not assigned and one student does not compete against another for formal recognition. Primary emphasis is placed upon learning through individual decision and initiative; however, because modern warfare requres joint and com-bined effort, increasing emphasis has, in recent years, been placed upon learning through the conference or group discus-

Although the principles just outlined have continued to guide the work of the Naval War College through the years, the curriculum and teaching techniquies are undergoing a constant scrutiny and evolution so that the College can, in the most effective manner, accomplish its mission—"to further an understanding of the fundamentals of warfare, with emphasis on their application to future naval warfare, in order to prepare officers for higher command."

It has become apparent that to fully accomplish its mission the War College must branch out into fields which, must branch out into fields which, at first glance, would seem to have little obvious or direct connection with sea-power. Thus, for example, psychological and ideological warfare, the economic aspects of mobilization, international law, and the internal politics of various countries are as closely studied as new countries are as closely studied as new weapons, the changing strategic picture, and other purely military aspects of sea-power. Leading authorities in these fields, both civilians and military, lecture at the College and participate in seminars with staff and students.

The staff of the War College serves more as an advisory group to the stu-dents, as opposed to the older concept of student and teacher. The staff members act as colleagues in the solution of problems and attempt to prevent a waste of the student's time by providing guidance where it is required and needed. Staff where it is required and needed. Stain solutions are never forced upon the student as the "official solution." Rather the staff solution is regarded as "a" solution among a large range of possible solutions. The War College is well aware that there is seldom, if ever, any such thing as "the" solution.

This method of instruction calls for mature and judiclous balancing of the a mature and judicious balancing of the claims of orthodoxy and of progress. By an examination of the torrent of writing upon military problems, by a constant perfecting of the curriculum, and by a broad consultation with the best civilian and military minds, the War College tries to blend the innovations and progress of our time with the older and more perma-nent elements of the art and science of Such a program also requires a very careful selection of student-officers. Keen intelligence must be coupled with an enthusiasm for the work. Students must be willing to explore new and untried methods, to welcome a novel approach and to keep a consistently fresh and open mind upon all matters. There is ample evidence that for the well-selected student the Naval War College is a valuable wild to his coron. An increasing number aid to his career. An increasing number of flag officers are being chosen from the ranks of War College graduates.

An important development has taken place at the War College this year in the introduction of a Command and Staff Course to supplant the old Junior Course. In order to fill what has been a definite gap in the Navy's educational system, the new course has been designed to prepare lieutenant commanders for duty as commanding officers of small units and for duty on Navy and Joint staffs. The curriculum of this course, in part, parallels that of the two senior resident courses, but a substantial part of the course is devoted to studies in staff organization and functioning, leadership, and operational control of fleet units. The operations problems solved by this class are designed to prepare them for service on staffs. At the same time, stu-dents are exposed to the broader prob-lems of sea power and naval organization.

Futhermore, the new course will be available next year to slightly more than twice the number of officers in the pres-ent class, and it is planned to have 100 ent class, and it is planned to have 100 students in the subsequent class. Today the four large buildings which make up the War College are once more undergoing alterations to enable the College to meet the increased requirements imposed upon it by the needs of the Navy.

These alterations will also permit closer coordination between the two closer coordination between the two senior courses of study, the Strategy and Tactics Course and the Strategy and Logistics Course. Since Strategy, Tactics, and Logistics are the interrelated parts of the whole problem of the military con-duct of war, it is imperative that there the the closest relationship between the be the closest relationship between the two senior courses. Accordingly, during the first four months of the year, students of these two classes will have practically the same curriculum.

In the middle of the academic year the Strategy and Logistics Course begins as

In the middle of the academic year the Strategy and Logistics Course begins an inquiry into domestic and foreign war potentials and a study of operational logistics, while the Strategy and Tactics logistics, while the Strategy and Tactics Course devotes time to additional and more advanced operations problems and special studies designed to further an understanding of strategy and tactics. Midway through the year each student submits a thesis upon a given subject. At the end of the year each student submits his concept of how a possible, future global war should be fought. In June a number of officers from other service colleges, highranking Naval Reserve offileges, highranking Naval Reserve offi-cers, and a small number of highly dis-tinguished civillans join with the staff and students of the College in a week-and students of the College in a week-long discussion of global strategy with emphasis upon the role of sea power in the whole frame-work.

In addition to the three resident courses previously described, the War College offers an Advanced Course and a number of correspondence courses which to a large extent parallel the resi-dent courses. The Advanced Course is designed to enable flag officers and cap-tains selected for flag rank to pursue intains selected for flag rank to pursue in-dividual research upon problems of high command. The excessive demands upon flag officers since the end of World War II have kept attendance in this course very low, but it is hoped and expected that attendance will be increased in the

In closing it might be pointed out that one of the greatest benefits of a yearlong residence in a studious atmosphere is the association with contemporaries and the intense informal discussion which takes place. Officers are exposed to new and different points of view; the associa-tion with officers of the other services leads to a mature and rounded outlook;

Exercise Southern Pine

"Exercise Southern Pine," the largest training maneuver since World War II, closed 27 Aug. and, "just like in the movies," the "good guys" won and the "bad guys" lost.

But it was planned that way. The two-week Exercise Southern Pine has not been a battle between equal opposing forces such as the "Red" and "Blue" armies of past maneuvers. The withdraw-als and encirclements, the attack and defense—in the broad sense—were all timed and planned before the exercise began. Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, commander of the VII Corps, major ground tactical headquarters in the maneuver, last week explained early "defeats" of U. S. forces to his somewhat perturbed headquarters troops when he said, "I received a letter from home the other day asking me why I was getting licked. Maybe you have, too. Well, understand that no matter what we do tactically or do not do, we are scheduled to be beaten in certain phases of the maneuver. We are also scheduled to win. Exercise Southern Pine was pre-planned in order to create specific problems which, through coordinated efforts of the air-ground team, we are to solve." General Burress gave as an example the encirclement of two U. S. regiments the encirclement of two U. S. regiments last week. He said it was intended that they be encircled so the Air Force could practice supply by air and so ground troops could see the effectiveness of such supply. This, he explained, instills confidence and builds morale, because men will understand that even though they. will understand that even though they are cut off from ground supply, they still can get ammunition and food by air.

VII Corps has been coordinating the efforts of Maj. Gen. Daniel B. Strickler's 28th (Keystone) Division and Maj. Gen.
Kenneth F. Cramer's 43d (Winged Victory) Division. During certain phases of the exercise, Maj. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey's 82d (All-American) Airborne Division has been in the VII Corps command.
With the belon of 800 unpires the entire

With the help of 800 umpires, the entire maneuver has been a series of created problems to test the efficiency of air and ground units, to experiment with new techniques, to discover the capabilities of new equipment, to give troops practice in dealing with combat methods em-ployed by Communist armies.

One of the most interesting experiments at Exercise Southern Pine was air evacuation of wounded from the front lines and from airborne units dropped be-hind enemy lines. Extensive use has been made of helicopters. Both the Army and the Air Force tested air evacuation tech-niques and their reports will be studied in the Pentagon for adoption.

Air liaison has played its usual role as eyes of the artillery. Air observation has also been used as a supplement to intelligence reports. Light planes have been used as message couriers to units cut off from wire and radio communication. Through loudspeakers mounted in low and slow-flying light planes, propaganda has been broadcast to "enemy" troops. The flying loudspeaker was also used to instruct convoys on the move.

Particularly planned as a joint Army-Air Force maneuver, Exercise Southern Pine has been a proving ground for close coordination between ground and air units.

Increased mobility of modern armies tremendously increases the problems of transportation and communications; Exercise Southern Pine has been practice for Transportation and Signal units—and for the Engineers who must improve roads and build bridges.

roads and build bridges.

VII Corps Headquarters personnel, who in the past would normally be far enough from the front lines to be safe from enemy ground attack, have been subjected to frequent and intense hit-and-run night attacks from infiltrating "Aggressor" forces "Aggressor" forces.

Constantly improving behind-the-lines parachute drops have also given the administrative troops of the Army a sober warning of what they might expect in actual combat. The specialist, the clerk the stenographer today must also be an accomplished fighter.

51, 82nd Congress) that all inactive

L. 51, 82nd Congress) that all lnactive or volunteer reserve veterans who served for one year between 7 December 1941 and 2 september 1945, will be released after completion of 17 months' active duty since 25 June 1950. All services are doing their utmost to reduce further the period of service for this group to a minimum consistent with maintenance of Korean operations and maintaining their combat forces at the minimum necessary level of readiness against atack. The enormous task of replacing these reserve veterans, nearly all of whom are officers and non-commissioned officers, by unrained recruits or inductees is straining the apacity of the services to the utmost. Even under the 17-month provision, a dangerous nut undestrable lowering of combat effectiveness will occur in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps until replacements can be fully trained.

"At the end of June there were approximately 280,000 inactive or volunteer reservists on active duty who fall within the category affected by this provision, most of whom would have to be released. (An erroneous stimate of 15,000 appeared on page 9964 of the Congressional Record.) Of these about 8,000 are officers whose replacements will require many months of training. Mandatory release of these reservists upon completion of 12 months active duty would result in either: (1) a heavy call-up of additional inactive and organized reservists and National Guardsmen as replacements or, (2) a drastic reduction of effectiveness of combat forces when trained reserve or Guard replacements are not available, as in the case of the Marine Corps.

"Ordering to active military service of individuals from organized reserve and National Guard units to provide these replacements would greatly reduce or destroy the effectiveness of those units. These organized units are needed in event a major act of agression should require large scale mobilization. To dissipate their effectiveness in order to furnish individual filter replacements.

ments would greatly reduce or destroy the effectiveness of those units. These organized units are needed in event a major act of agression should require large scale mobilization. To dissipate their effectiveness in order to furnish individual filler replacements is not only undesirable from the standpoint of unit effectiveness, but would be contrary to insistence by the Congress that the literative of these units be preserved.

"If the 12-month provision should become law, even though large numbers of additional trained reservists are called to active duty at the earliest possible date, it will be extremely difficult to release all inactive reservists so affected in the time available. The time involved in calling a new reservist to active duty, processing and transporting him overseas, relieving the inactive reservist to be released and transporting him home, and finally processing him for release will require a longer period than the 3½ months remaining before 30 November.

"Aside from all the foregoing considerations, the 12-month provision would mean a complete disruption of the Services' present present plans for orderly replacements and release of reservists, and would require accelerated input of additional reservists, recruits and inductees. Major losses will be peaked in the month of November and serve to overload facilities for processing those being released. For example, the Navy will lose over 25,000 more reservists during November 1951 than now planned. This would result in materially larger costs for accessins, training, and separations and would also require additional funds because of the additional man years involved in the 'overlap.'

"This provision would also prohibit pay for certain junctive or volunteer reserve vet-additional man years involved in the 'overlap.'

"This provision would also prohibit pay for certain inactive or volunteer reserve veterans retained on active duty in a hospitalized or prisoner of war status beyond 30 November 1951.

"The specific effects of the proposed 12-month provision on each of the Services are outlined below:

within provision of the services are outlined below:

ARMY

"The major impact of the 12-month provision would be on the officer category. Under the present 17-month provision, the Army will end FY 1952 approximately 15,700 officers under authorized strength. The proposed 12-month law would result in an officer understrength of about 27,600, an increase in this serious shortage of approximately 12,000 officers.

"A major part of the officer requirement is for overseas duty. Under the 12-month provision approximately 9,000 officer replacements would be required overseas by 31 December 1951. This figure could not be met, with the result that many officers would have to serve a second winter in Korea. The effectiveness of Korean combat units, already difficult to maintain because of personnel turnover, would be reduced.

"The 12-month provision would require earlier separation of 20,000 additional enlisted men who are now scheduled for separation in December 1951.

"A major effect of the 12-month provision with respect to both officer and enlisted personnel would be the necessity for suspension of overseas rotation planned to commence in September 1951. Many individuals will complete four years' continuous overseas service in December and the 12-month provision would necessitate further extension of their overseas tours.

"The proposed 12-month provision would probably necessitate recall of additional National Guard and Reserve Divisions and smaller units for the sole purpose of using individual members to fill levies to meet overseas requirements.

NAVY

"The 12-month provision would require an additional loss during the month of November of approximately 1,400 officers and 24,000 enlisted men above that now planned. Inasmuch as most of these men are trained officers and petty officers, such a concentrated additional loss would seriously reduce the effectiveness of the Navy. The ships of the Navy would require trained replacements for thousands of petty officers whose loss during the first half of FY 1952 had not been contemplated. In order to redistribute available personnel to ships and squadrons in the forward areas, the Navy would be forced to immobilize ships in home waters as well as to postpone plans for further activations now scheduled. The only effective alternative would be to recall thousands of additional veterans to replace these losses, walving the customary 30-day warning notice. However, in many ratings, the reserve sources have been exhausted and replacements could be provided only by new procurement and training.

MARINE CORPS

"The 12-month provision would require the release from active duty of over 1,600 trained officers up to 5 months earlier than now planned, and the release of about 10.000 trained enlisted men (mostly non-commissioned officers) some 2 or 3 months earlier trained enlisted men (mostly non-commissioned officers) some 2 or 3 months earlier than now planned.

"Since practically all the Marine Corps reservists who are usable under present conditions have already been ordered into active service, these losses cannot be replaced by ordering into active service additional reservists. Replacements must in a large measure be untrained recruits and untrained second lieutenants. The recruits could be obtained and given basic training in from two to eight months. It would take an appreciable period of time to procure 1,600 new officers. Their basic training would take from five months to a year. It would take considerably longer to replace the skills lost through this early release. There is no alternative but to reduce the strength of combat units until replacements can be procured and trained. This will destroy the readiness of the Marine Divisions and Aircraft Wings and render the Marine Corps incapable of meeting its current commitments.

AIR FORCE

"The 12-month proposal would have no effort on the planned release of aligner.

"The 12-month proposal would have no effect on the planned release of airmen. "Approximately 9,000 additional officers would have to be released during FY 1952 above the planned number. This increase would aggravate the aiready serious problem of replacement of trained officers during this fiscal year."

Survivor Benefits Bill

Survivor Benefits Bill

Pending resumption of hearings after the House's recess, the staff of the House Committee on Armed Services is engaged in a detailed analysis of existing survivors' benefits and their effect on the pay-as-you-go bill submitted by the Department of Defense.

Present survivors' benefits are incalculuably complicated, particularly by the extension of Federal Employees Compensation rates to certain, but not all, nonregular personnel. Under the FECA rates the survivors of some reserve officers are the survivors of some reserve officers are entitled to rates in excess of $500 a month while the widows of Regulars are month while the widows of Regulars are limited to $75 a month.

Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex.), chairman of the subcommittee handling the bill and sponsor of a similar measure in the last Congress, told The Journal that existing rates must be brought into line before superimposing the newly proposed pay-as-you-go rates. The present bill provides that the new self-paid rates must be over and above any other pensions or gratuities authorized by law.

any other pensions or gratuities authorized by law.

At present, Mr. Kilday said, the problem is to get the maze of laws correlated and see just what the situation is before attempting to decide what can be done. Following the recess the subcommittee will hear the new Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral William M. Fechteler, who has long been an advocate of an adequate system of survivors' benefits. Following his testimony the committee will call government actuaries who helped work out the proposed schedule of deductions from service pay to carry out the plan. out the proposed schedule of deductions from service pay to carry out the plan. Then they will hear from representatives of insurance companies who want to speak on the plan. It will be recalled that there was some opposition from these companies last year when Mr. Kilday held hearings on a similar bill.

A statement by Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg made recently to Mr. Kilday's subcommittee follows:

cently to Mr. Kilday's subcommittee follows:

"It is my strong conviction that the pensions presently available to the survivors of our servicemen are wholly inadequate. I have received numerous letters from widows of our soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines asking if something couldn't be done about obtaining more realistic pensions for them and their children. I feel that not only can this be done but that it must be done.

"The question of survivors' benefits was first brought to attention in the Department of Defense by the late Secretary James Forrestal when he noted that the report of the Advisory Commission on Service Pay (Hook Commission) contained no provisions for benefits for widows of retired service personnel. Acting upon his recommendations, a plan was drafted which was the predecessor of the one you are now considering. The unfortunate death of Admiral Sherman has again highlighted the need for prompt action. When our Government only provides the widow of a man like Admiral Sherman with the magnificent sum of $75 per month, there is something radically wrong with our sense of values.

"The bill you have before you today would there is something radically wrong with our sense of values.

"The bill you have before you today would give active and retired servicemen the opportunity to provide protection for their families at reasonable rates commensurate with their pay. The plan would provide benefits which are related to the standard of living established by the serviceman for his family. I want to emphasize that this is not a Government-supported program. The program is designed to be self-supporting without any foreseeable expense to the Government.

out any foreseeable expense to the Government.

"Here we have an opportunity to help the serviceman help himself. I know that the morale of our fighting servicemen would be greatly boosted if they had assurance that their loved ones would be adequately taken care of in the event of their death.

"I am convinced, also, that individual servicemen and their families will take pride in the fact that they themselves are footing the bill. I, for one, have never believed that the average American is always looking for something for nothing.

"This legislation is in accord with the American principles of self-reliance and individual dignity. It gives our men in uniform the opportunity to provide for the futures of their loved ones. This is an opportunity to which they are richly entitled. This is an opportunity which will make available the peace of mind our men in uniform must have in order to do their jobs whole heartedly.

"I commend survivors' benefits legislation to you gentlemen, and strongly urge that you support its early passage."

When you move, notify the Army Navy Air Force Journal of your change of address so you will not miss any issues.

Social Security Benefits

Because there is so little general knowledge on the subject, Brig. Gen. A. E. Jones, USAF (Ret.), assistant director of the Air Force Aid Society, has compiled a memorandum on social security benefits for the guidance of Air curity benefits for the guidance of Air Force widows.

The law applies to all Armed Services personnel. However, General Jones points out that it is so complex that each case must be determined individually on the facts presented. It is necessary, he says, for the widow to take her case to a local Social Security office. The full text of his memorandum follows:

"Subject: Eligibility of Widows and Children of World War II Personnel For Social Security Payments

ren of World War II Personnel For Social Security Payments
'1. The Air Force Ald Society has found that dependents of World War II personnel do not know that they may be eligible for payments under the provisions of the 1950 amendments to the Social Security Act. Active duty personnel who served in the World War II period should acquaint themselves with the provisions so in case of death their wives will know how to apply for benefits.

world War II period should acquaint themselves with the provisions so in case of death their wives will know how to apply for benefits.

"2. Under the 1950 amendments to the Social Security Act, certain credits are given for active service in the Armed Forces of the United States during World War II. This applies to personnel who had 90 days or more of active military or naval service during the period Sept. 15, 1940 and July 25, 1947, including those who died in service and those whose discharge or release was under conditions other than dishonorable. Ninety days of active service are not required if discharge or release was by reason of disability or injury incurred or aggravated in line of duty.

"3. This means that the widows and children under 18 of deceased personnel who had active duty during the period after Sept. 15, 1940 and before July 25, 1947, may be eligible for Social Security payments. These payments may be in addition to compensation or pensions determined to be payable by the Veterans Administration.

"4. The widow should inquire about benefits at a Social Security Office regardless of whether the serviceman's death occurred in service or after discharge. The widow will need identification papers, marriage certificate, in the case have been reviewed. Where there are children, serial number of the serviceman and his military service record, discharge papers, and death certificate.

F-89 Flies Minus Canopy

High speed, high altitude flights of the S. Air Force's Northrop Scorpion F-89 without a cockpit canopy have provided proof that both crew members can ef-fectively operate their seat ejection systems to escape in an emergency at speeds in excess of 500 miles an hour.

Northrop Aircraft has concluded a series of five flights at the Air Force Flight Test Center, Edwards AFB, Muroc, Calif., with the canopy removed from an E.89. an F-89.

an F-89.

The final, and fifth, flight was made at 520 mph with Maj. John Stapp, Air Force aeronautical medical officer, wearing a P1-A helmet. Major Stapp suffered no injury and was capable of maintaining all faculties during the flight.

faculties during the flight.

Although minus a canopy, the plane's handling characteristics were reported to be not markedly affected and the pilot not subjected to appreciable discomfort.

Major Stapp, an Air Force flight surgeon and aero-medical laboratory research scientist, has been actively assigned to development and testing of air signed to development and testing of air crew survival equipment for several years. As director of the Air Force-Northyears, As director of the Air Force-North-rop air crew decelerator project at Ed-wards Air Force Base, he volunteered for many of the decelerator test runs. The decelerator is a high-speed railroad car-riage capable of being brought to exceed-ingly rapid stops. Forces applied by the quick stops duplicate those applied on the human body during aircraft crash land-ings.

Develop Human Centrifuge

At the Navy's Air Development Center, Johnsville, Pa., the finishing touches are being put on a new device which may revolutionize research in the field of aviation medicine.

It is a human centrifuge-the largest such machine in the world—designed as a research tool which the Navy hopes will be able to simulate all of the stresses and strains which a pilot experiences while flying a plane.

The device consists of a powerful motor (one capable of creating a force of 40 G), with a fifty foot arm at the end of which is suspended a streamlined "gondola" (a cockpit 10 feet in diameter) in which the test pilot rides. Starting from a standstill position, the gondola can be whirled to position, the gondola can be whirled to the 175 mph speed in seven seconds. If the device lives up to expectations, the Navy will be able, for the first time, to simulate all of the conditions which a pilot might encounter flying at low or high altitudes, minimum or maximum speeds, and with all of the various stresses called into play. Included in the gondola is a television camera which enables "outviewers to see exactly what happens to the pilot under different condi-tions. Instruments in the machine also measure the pilots' reactions.

Designed by the Special Devices Divi-sion of the Bureau of Aeronautics and the McKiernan Terry Co. of New Jersey, the centrifuge has been constructed over a period of more than four years. It is now in the final test stages and is expected to be placed in the hands of Naval Flight Surgeons at an early date.

Medical Equipment Purchases

Under a cooperative arrangement announced by the General Services Administration, the Armed Services Medical Procurement Agency of the Department of Defense has been designated to make all purchases of medical equipment and supplies for the Federal Civil Defense Agency.

The move is designed to create more economy and efficiency in the highly technical field of medical procurement by eliminating competition between two of the country's largest users—the Arm forces and FCDA—for available supplie At the same time, the Government w -the Armed be able to place orders for its medical requirements at times hwen they will create the least impact on manufacturers and private consumers.

GSA said initial purchases under the new arrangement will amount to $40,000,000, with $20,000,000 furnished by the Federal Government and the other half by individual states.

Subcontracting Exhibit

Small businessmen in the southeastern area will have opportunity to examine items of military production which they might be able to manufacture at a joint Armed Forces Subcontractors Exhibit in Atlanta, Ga., at the Biltmore Exhibit Hall from 10 to 12 Sept.

The exhibit is organized by the Armed Forces Regional Council which covers Georgia, South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee, although businessmen from other sections may attend if they desire.

Prime military contractors will display the products they are making for the Army, the Navy or the Air Force, and will show the component parts they wish to farm out.

Manufacturers interested in this Sub contractors Exhibit should communicate with Capt. Donald T. Giles, Inspector of Naval Materiel, 770 Spring Street, N.W., Atlanta, Ga., Acting Chairman.

According to Harry E. Conrad, Executive Secretary of the technical society, the aim of the program is to locate other manufacturing plants with the capacity and ability to produce machine tools and components and put them in touch with machinery builders seeking added capacity.

"It takes time to build new machine tool plants," Conrad said, "and even more tool plants," Conrad said, "and even more time to equip such plants with the necessary machines to make machine tools. Senator Lodge's Views

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., (R-Mass.) submitted individual views this week on the hearings which were held on the dismissal of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

Although he stated that General MacArthur's administration in Japan "should Arthur's administration in Japan "should have been continued" until a peace treaty was effected, Senator Lodge large-treaty was effected, Senator Lodge largely confined his remarks to policy matters over and above the dismissal row.

He said that Soviet strategic aviation is gaining on the U. S. and that U. S. air strength should be built up "as rapidly as possible." A failure to build our military strength as rapidly as possible "is an unprecedented failure to support our own troops," he said.

Asks More Navy-Marine Air

The Navy League of the United States this week voiced opposition to the Vinson plan for a 163-group Air Force.

plan for a 163-group Air Force.

A League spokesman, John S. Leahy, jr., testifying before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, said that the Navy League advocated increased appropriations for air power only if the Navy and Marine Corps could share in such appropriations.

He said that air power should not be thought of as synonymous with the Air Force because "Naval Aviation and Marine Aviation constitute a very important rore because "Navai Aviation and Ma-rine Aviation constitute a very important part of the nation's air power." The Air Force in Korea, he said, "did not have and was not in a position to provide suffi-ciently trained pilots and aircraft capa-ble of furnishing close ground support for the troops in the field."

Mr. Leahy suggested that any sum appropriated to strengthen military air power "should be allocated among the Air Force and the Navy and the Marine Corps on the basis of proportionate potential contribution to increased military air power."
